fifth

Organisations do not often provide user's manuals. This is the ~~fourth~~ draft user's manual for Eastside Projects. It explains what the organisation is made of, how it was set up, who it is for, how it can be used and what it can offer. As would be the case for operating a machine or learning a subject, a manual may be necessary for the full use of Eastside Projects. ¶ In this draft, the manual is structured as an alphabetical compendium of verbs. Each of these interconnected entries describes an activity engaged in by Eastside Projects as an organisation or a process occurring in the Eastside Projects building. Beneath each entry is a prompt to the reader to follow one of multiple narrative paths through the text. ¶ Readers unfamiliar with Eastside Projects should begin at D E S C R I B I N G. ¶ Other suggested starting points: ¶ W E L C O M I N G ¶ E X H I B I T I N G ¶ N A R R A T I N G ¶ C O M P L I C A T I N G ¶ I N T E G R A T I N G.

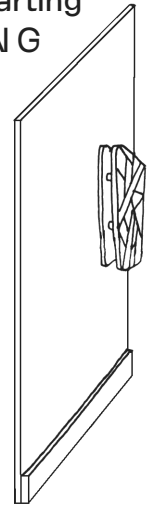

FIG. 2 (see W E L C O M I N G)
Matthew Harrison, 'Willkommen. Bienvenue. Welcome. C'mon In.' (2008). Eastside Projects front door handle.

The entries overprinted in pink and blue in this fifth draft manual for Eastside Projects were composed in response to the proceedings of 'Public Evaluation Event'. This three day symposium took place at Eastside Projects during 27 to 29 October 2011. ¶ Staged as a series of public presentations, invited contributors (see FIG. 6, p. 24) evaluated three years of Eastside Projects from various critical points of view. Draft four of this manual — on which this present draft five is overprinted — was used as a prompt and reference during the event. ¶ Corrections and additions for draft five were formulated during 'Public Evaluation Event', and the overprinted elements now operate as a layer of critical commentary on the statements in draft four. New suggested starting points are: ¶ DISTRIBUTING ¶ OPERATING ¶ PRODUCING. ¶ For more on this process begin at EVALUATING.

ACCUMULATING

At the end of each exhibition at Eastside Projects we build on, recycle and upcycle its remains. In this way, each exhibition alters the space, and the space writes and records its own history. Each new addition responds to and alters the existing conditions. The gallery accumulates the traces of its use as part of a learning process. ¶ During this process, certain artworks have become long-term fixtures of the space. These include works by artists Susan Collis, Peter Fend, Martino Gamper (see COMMISSIONING), Matthew Harrison (see WELCOMING), Barbara Holub, ISAN, Heather and Ivan Morison (see MODIFYING), Scott Myles, Jennifer Tee (see PLACEMAKING), Lawrence Weiner (see TIMING), and Carey Young. ¶ Turn to CONTINUING.

ADAPTING

See FIG. 10, pp. 22–23, then turn to ADDING.

ADDING

The following objects were added to the space in its initial repurposing in 2008. ¶ See FIG. 5, pp. 7–8, then turn to DESIGNING.

ADVERTISING

We advertise our events and exhibitions programme in art magazines such as Frieze, Art Monthly and Art Review. We also advertise in local listings magazine Area. ¶ Turn to COMMUNICATING.

ANSWERING

Eastside Projects has developed from responses to the following questions: ¶ How do architecture and design support exhibition-making? ¶ Can architecture and design be used as curatorial strategies as part of a gallery programme? ¶ Can exhibitions reveal the means, relationships, and underlying ideologies in the making and representation of space? ¶ Turn to SEQUENCING.

ARTIST-CURATING

Positioning a thing/place/message in relation to another as art. ¶ Turn to COMMISSIONING.

BELONGING

Eastside is a regeneration area of Birmingham that has frequently changed its boundaries over the last ten years. It was established by Birmingham City Council as a rebranding of the former industrial heart of the city, meant to reshape the commercial centre and increase the flow of business and civic functions. ¶ The name has been abandoned and reclaimed on a number of occasions. Within current proposals, Eastside Projects is no longer located within Eastside. ¶ Turn to STAFFING.

ACCUMULATING[II]
Eastside Projects accumulates a community of artists, designers, academics, curators and thinkers. The influence of these relationships is apparent in many aspects of the space, programme, working structures and thinking of the organisation.

ADJUSTING
The new material overprinted in the margins of this fifth draft manual is arranged alphabetically. Adjustments to existing entries appear either as supplementary entries in the margins, or as marks obscuring or altering parts of the original document. ¶ Turn to USING.

A section of Mobile Wall System from Vienna Secession (designed by Adolf Krischanitz in 1986) was on loan to Eastside Projects during 'Narrative Show' and 'Painting Show' (May 2011 to February 2012). The Mobile Wall System was transported 855 miles from Vienna to Birmingham. ¶ The wall represents a carrier of narrative. ¶ In September 2011 two parts of the wall were relocated to the Architectural Association in London for 'Narrative Show Exposition'. ¶ Turn to COLLABORATING.

CIRCULATING

See FIG. 20, p. 44, then turn to TIMING.

COLLABORATING

We believe in working collaboratively towards change. Collaboration is based on mutual dependence, it is unpredictable, precarious, fragile. It is driven by individuals through the desire to multiply their potential to overcome scarcity or inequality in a way that they cannot alone. ¶ Turn to COOPERATING.

COLLECTING

The gallery is a collection. The gallery is an artwork. ¶ Turn to RETAINING.

COMMISSIONING

Martino Gamper was commissioned to make an addition to the gallery as a contribution to the exhibition 'Book Show' (July to September 2010). During the exhibition Gamper's four-panel concertina structure in red, grey, yellow and white laser-cut powder coated steel was used to display Katerina Šeda and Radim Peško's project 'Der Geist Von Uhyst', a book in four editions, each bound on a different edge. ¶ During February 2011 the structure was used to present Book Works publications during the exhibition 'Again, A Time Machine'. It remains in daily use for storing and displaying books. ¶ Turn to PROVOKING.

COMPLAINING

On Friday 28 October 2011, as part of 'Public Evaluation Event', An Endless Supply — a design practice founded by former Eastside Projects employees Harry Blackett and Robin Kirkham — presented a series of anecdotal indictments of Eastside Projects. ¶ The following is an extract from their scripted performance. ¶ ... ¶ Simon & Tom Bloor, 'As Long As It Lasts' (21 February to 4 April 2009) ¶ Third show in programme too soon for directors to be exhibiting their own work? ¶ Undeclared high pollen count forces volunteer to leave early. Debilitates him for a day after allergic reaction. ¶ A necessary music, unnecessarily quiet. Where's VRU? ¶ I'm still waiting for publication colophon. ¶ The billboard fell down. ¶ ... ¶ Joanne Tatham & Tom O'Sullivan, 'Does Your Contemplation of the Situation Fuck with the Flow of Circulation?' (4 July to 6 September 2009) ¶ Difficult major summer show. ¶ A white tunnel is about as delicate as a white suit. ¶ Gallery director should turn his phone off during public conversation with artists. ¶ Sunday openings aren't working, just because you can doesn't mean you should, all time low attendance figures. ¶ Attention artist-led spaces. You don't exist if you don't have a landline. ¶ Clarification needed as to volunteers payment and complimentary ESP membership. ¶ The billboard fell down. ¶ ... ¶ 'hobbypopMUSEUM' (8 May to 13 June 2010) ¶ Newspaper now feels like a daily as opposed to a big thick Sunday. ¶ The most interesting element of the exhibition was the install, something completely closed to the public. ¶ Most hands off curating to date. ¶ The billboard fell down. ¶ ...

¶ Carey Young, 'Memento Park' (27 November 2010 to 29 January 2011)

¶ Delayed installation becomes performance during private view. ¶ No support system for Future Jobs Fund employees who need it. ¶ Staff rotation needs to be staggered to avoid one step forward, two steps back. ¶ Specta update late. ¶ I'm still waiting for Carey Young's major monograph. ¶ The billboard fell down. ¶ ... ¶ 'Narrative Show' (14 May to 10 September 2011) ¶ Experience of gallery now predominantly through the website and Twitter, being on the outside communication is a problem. ¶ Sending emails where

COMPLICATING

We exist to respond to the best and most challenging contemporary art and to put radical historical models and precedents to good use. We believe that if the art of today is complex and demanding then the places that we conceive for producing and experiencing it should reflect this. ¶ Turn to INTERPRETING.

CRITICISING

Crit Club is a series of intensive critical practice discussions facilitated by ESP staff and guest practitioners. Crit Club focuses on addressing text is in image form is bad practice. This point has been raised with three separate current members of staff, an example of failing to learn from previous experiences. ¶ Eastside Projects listens but it does not learn. ¶ Turn to ADJUSTING.

CULTIVATING

Eastside Projects is a cultural organisation, which means we participate in the formation of culture. We intend our primary activity to be cultivating: to take care, to tend to, and to preserve. The relationship between man and his ecology needs to be cultivated until the universe becomes fit for human habitation. ¶ Turn to PRECEDING.

DISTRIBUTING

See FIG. 24, p. 12. One of three broad terms used during 'Public Evaluation Event' to classify the labour required to maintain Eastside Projects (see also PRODUCING and OPERATING). ¶ A proposition: distribution is how messages go out into the world; the actions that are prompted by sharing information, knowledge, ideas, and conditions. ¶ Following 'Public Evaluation Event' we revised the job description for one of our staff members to become 'Gallery Assistant: Distribution'. In this context, by distributing we mean: ¶ Marketing (advertising, web and other associated elements) ¶ Lectures, talks, events ¶ Extra Special People programme. ¶ Turn to SPEAKING.

DOG-WHISTLING

As a contribution to the exhibition 'This is the Gallery and the Gallery is Many Things' (September to November 2008), Kelly Large instigated a perverse social ritual in the gallery. Each morning, following the opening of the building, the alarm was left to sound until a passerby or neighbour entered the building to complain. This process forced our immediate neighbours — a taxi repair workshop and a limousine hire company — to enter the gallery, where they were prompted to look around. During a presentation at 'Public Evaluation Event', Large likened this process to a dog-whistle, suggesting that Eastside Projects' most receptive audience is remote — outside Birmingham — and encouraging us to continue to foster local relations.

CURATING

DECODING

Sæ FIG. 18, p. 42, then turn to CONFOUNDING.

DEMANDING

If previous gallery structures tend to lull you into passivity then Eastside Projects demands, through both its programme and the nature of its space, that you are active. We invite you to project your own contemplation onto the objects and narratives presented in the gallery. This process is a prompt for further work beyond the public space of the gallery into and onto the public sphere. This should be the purpose of the gallery. ¶ Turn to DECODING.

DESCRIBING

Eastside Projects is an exhibition space with many differences. It is a fræ, public space that is being imagined and organised by artists. We commission and present experimental contemporary art exhibitions, and propose ways in which art may be useful to society. ¶ Turn to FOUNDING.

ECONOMISING
"Not all production is commodity production. Not all production is production for financial exchange. Not all production is determined by supply and demand. Economics is not the best method of examining non-economic production. Economists give artists bad advice." ¶ — The Freee Art Collective, 'Economists Are Wrong! The Warsaw Manifesto 2011', published for 'Public Evaluation Event'.

DESIGNING
Maxim: No default positions. No definitive forms. ¶ Turn to TYPE-DESIGNING.

DISPLAYING
Eastside Projects questions the concept of a default display environment. We do not perceive the gallery as a 'neutral' space for staging exhibitions. The gallery and its spatial configuration must be reconsidered in response to each new programmatic situation. ¶ Turn to ACCUMULATING.

DOCUMENTING
See FIG. 7, pp. 14–17. Artist Stuart Whipps has been making photographic documentation of activities at Eastside Projects from a series of fixed positions since before the gallery opened in 2008. ¶ In May 2011 Whipps installed eight camera mounting brackets in new fixed positions around the gallery. Periodically, during 'Narrative Show' (May to September 2011), the artist made new photographs from these positions, recording the transformations occurring in the space. ¶ Turn to REFERRING.

ENGAGING (see also FIG. 29, p. 35)
Extra Special People (ESP) is an associate membership programme for anyone who would benefit from engaging with the dynamic, ambitious, artist-led environment provided by Eastside Projects. ¶ Turn to SUPPORTING.

ESCAPING
See FIG. 12, pp. 26–27, then turn to UPCYCLING.

EXHIBITING
We believe in the vitality of the medium of exhibitions. ¶ Turn to DISPLAYING.

FACILITATING
ESP members meet to develop their own and others' practice within a regional, national and international context supported by Eastside Projects. ¶ Turn to VISITING.

FOUNDING (see also ECONOMISING and PRECEDING)
Gavin Wade first conceived and now runs Eastside Projects with a founding collective comprising Simon & Tom Bloor, Céline Condorelli, Ruth Claxton and James Langdon. ¶ We are a group of individuals who are motivated by common interests, and work together to achieve a common objective. Our collective permits us to share decision-making processes and exercise political, organisational and social power through consensus, on an egalitarian basis, not focused on financial benefit. ¶ Turn to NOT-FOR-PROFITEERING.

EVALUATING
See FIG. 25, pp. 14–15.
The apparatus of 'Public Evaluation Event' consisted of: two projectors, one displaying supporting visual material required by the contributing speakers, the other displaying live updates from the Twitter hashtag #PEE11; two stenographers operating stenotypes; a monitor displaying live text output from the stenotypes; sound and video recording equipment; webcasting equipment; printed handouts presenting charts and other supporting information (see FIG. 23, p. 4.); seating, tables and refreshments. ¶ Turn to QUESTIONING.[II]

FUNDING

Our exhibition and publication programmes have received additional project-specific support from the following funding bodies: ¶ CFAR (BIAD, Birmingham City University); Diversity Arts Forum; The Elephant Trust; The Embassy of Mexico; Fonds BKVB; Future Jobs Fund; Ikon Gallery; Lisson Gallery; Mondriaan Foundation; TrAIN, London College of Communication. ¶ Additional core funding provided by Business Link West Midlands. ¶ Turn to OCCUPYING.

HAIRDRESSING

"Let's build an artworld in the image of the hairdresser. The hairdresser attacks the way things are. The hairdresser ploughs through facts with the not-yet. The hairdresser scours reality with alternatives. The hairdresser makes systematic mercenary war on what in fact is. This is why even the most perfectionist hairdresser is ultimately on the side of wildness. The hairdresser trims individualistic and indisciplined growths into unified planned wholes and truth bearing events." ¶ — Freee, 'The Whistle-blower's Pocket Guide to Dissent in the Public Sphere Incorporating Let's Build and Fuck Globalisation', 2010. ¶ Turn to WHISTLE-BLOWING.

INSPIRING

INTEGRATING

Eastside Projects considers design, organisational structures and architecture to be an integral part of its programme. ¶ Turn to ANSWERING.

HOSTING

During Public Evaluation Event, FormContent — an organisation founded in 2007 by Francesco Pedraglio, Caterina Riva and Pieternel Vermoortel in east London — delivered a performance on the theme of hosting. The following is an extract from their script. ¶ As a statement, Eastside Projects takes a very particular conceptual structure that can be conceived of as a practice of hosting. ¶ ... ¶ The host welcomes relatives, friends and acquaintances, stray dogs, passers-by, back packers, and so on.

¶ The invitation is never persistent, though, yet subtly delivered. The host likes interruptions, interferences, twists and shifts, background noises. ¶ The host collects and produces, but never discards. ¶ Occasionally the host enjoys swapping positions with the guests, making the role interchangeable, shifting subjectivities. The host doesn't host, but absorbs. ¶ Turn to CULTIVATING.

INVESTING

Eastside Projects is a good investment for public and private stakeholders who are seeking to use their funds to generate social value. We are currently undertaking a series of Social Return on Investment (SROI) reports. SROI is a principles-based method for measuring extra-financial value — environmental and social value not currently reflected in conventional financial accounts — relative to resources invested. It can be used by any entity to evaluate impact on stakeholders, identify ways to improve performance, and enhance the performance of investments. Our first SROI has been to measure the impact of our work with the Future Jobs Fund (FJF) to employ unemployed practitioners within our own organisation and partner organisations. ¶ Scenario I: SROI for the state only, based on evaluation of savings made and income generated for the state through investment in FJF employees at Eastside Projects. ¶ Headline calculation: every £1 invested generates a return of £3.75. ¶ Net saving for the state is £2.75 for every £1 invested in Eastside Projects. ¶ Scenario II: SROI for multiple stakeholders impacted by the employment of FJF practitioners at Eastside Projects. ¶ Headline calculation: every £1 invested generates a return of £7.59. ¶ Net benefit for our stakeholders and for the economy of Birmingham is £6.59 for every £1 invested in employment at Eastside Projects by the state. ¶ We intend to publish the detailed calculations of our completed SROI reports in 'This is the Gallery and the Gallery is Many Things', to be published in 2012. ¶ Neil Powell is assisting with our SROI Reports. ¶ Turn to ECONOMISING.

INTERPRETING

Our mission is threefold: ¶ 1) To not compromise the nature of the artworks we exhibit by offering unnecessary layers of interpretation, ¶ 2) To assist artists by providing a rich context within which they may express the full potential of their work, and ¶ 3) To support the public to engage in both interpreting perception and perceiving interpretation. ¶ Turn to DEMANDING.

INTRODUCING

See FIG. 9, pp. 20–21. ¶ A list of artists who made their first Birmingham presentation at Eastside Projects. ¶ Turn to SEEKING.

LAYERING

"The space also acts as a growing archive of its own production and evolution. There was an interesting point for me during the installation of Tacita Dean's work, 'Darmstadter Werkblock' (2007) in 'Curtain Show' (March to April 2010). The artist's assistant could not understand why the wall was the way it was (see TRANSFORMING). ¶ It was difficult to explain how, while being the remainder of an artwork, it was also part of the gallery and the existing conditions that we wanted Tacita's film to work within. Once it was clear that there was a congruent relationship between the space and the subject matter in Tacita's own film of the relationship between Joseph Beuys's work and the space it existed within, he was happy with it, and didn't even want to paint over other areas we thought could be neatened! ¶ People seem to need to create a difference between what is considered artwork and what is not, as if the gallery context itself was not work and could be ignored. It is difficult to explain until people come to Eastside Projects; the space just makes sense when you are present in it. Perhaps this is because it is so far from a white cube, and all the layers of the making of the space are apparent and overlaid, making it too complex to read from a distance." ¶ — Céline Condorelli, in 'Manifesta Journal *#*10'. ¶ Turn to COLLECTING.

LINING

The interior architecture of Eastside Projects occupies the building with a thin and fragile layer: a lining. This temporary, ad-hoc aesthetic reveals at any moment the layers of activity that have shaped the conditions of the space. ¶ Turn to ADAPTING.

LOCALISING

In 2011 our street sign was designed, fabricated in powder coated steel and screenprinted all within 300 yards of the gallery. ¶ Turn to NEIGHBOURING.

MODIFYING

For example, the Eastside Projects office is the artwork 'Pleasure Island' by Heather and Ivan Morison. Originally commissioned for the Wales Pavilion at the Venice Biennale in 2007, the structure has bæn modified to function as an office. New features include a kitchen, desks, shelving and a larger entrance.

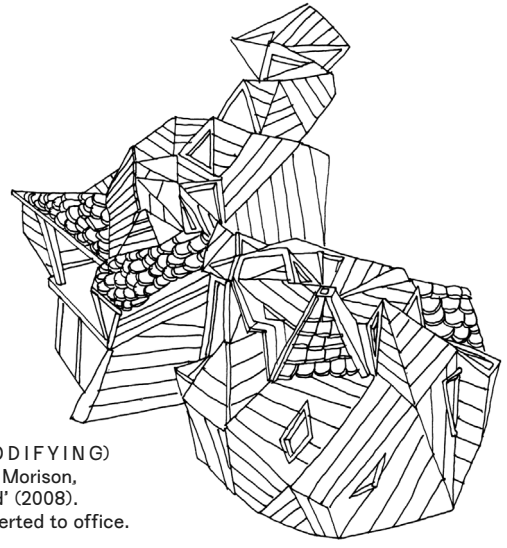

FIG. 11 (see MODIFYING)
Heather & Ivan Morison, 'Pleasure Island' (2008). Sculpture converted to office.

¶ The artists are presenting a series of puppet shows within 'Pleasure Island' as part of the gallery programme. ¶ In July 2011 the artists created an annex to 'Pleasure Island' as a home for Mighty Titan, a mynah bird who we are teaching to recite the phrase 'Du vergisst Dinge. Du vergisst Dinge. Du musst.' ¶ Turn to TRANSFORMING.

NARRATING

Narrative is a fundamental part of Eastside Projects' methodology and practice. Making explicit the idea of narrative within an exhibition programme and why it is useful creates a context in which to assimilate and express ideas. This 'performance' is through material, actions and language. ¶ Language cannot describe a spatial, cumulative, and phenomenological environment and all the artworks that exist within these parameters. At a certain point in narrating an element of fiction comes into play, which might be closer to the real experience of the space, and this becomes a fædback mechanism, that allows us to question and interpret the life of the space. ¶ By now Eastside Projects is not just a physical 'building-up', joining together and combining of elements, but also a narrative flowing through the space. ¶ The world is understood through myths. All meaning comes to us as stories. We can take control of these stories to create our own meaning and form new myths. Fragments of stories and half-remembered truths form constantly re-written histories and articulate new and possible futures. ¶ Turn to CURATING.

NOT-FOR-PROFITEERING

Eastside Projects is an artist-run space as public gallery, not for profit company limited by guarantee registration number 6402007. ¶ We are an Arts Council England National Portfolio Organisation in partnership with Birmingham City University, supported by the Paul Hamlyn Foundation Breakthrough Fund. ¶ Turn to BUDGETING.

OCCUPYING

Eastside Projects occupies an industrial building, previously a cabinet makers, in Heath Mill Lane, Eastside, Birmingham, UK. ¶ Turn to BELONGING.

OPENING

Eastside Projects is open Thursdays 12 to 6.30pm, Fridays and Saturdays 12 to 5pm. (Closed during installation of exhibitions.) Admission is free. ¶ Turn to PROGRAMMING.

ORGANISING

Eastside Projects seeks to continuously question its status as an organisation and respond to the pressures of becoming an institution. Our ambition is to incorporate the methodologies of art-making at all scales and functions of the organisation.

OPERATING
See FIG. 26, p. 27. One of three broad terms used during 'Public Evaluation Event' to classify the labour required to maintain Eastside Projects (see also PRODUCING and DISTRIBUTING). ¶ A proposition: operation is the organisation of manpower, place and resources. Operation is conditions and policies. ¶ Following 'Public Evaluation Event' we revised the job description for one of our staff members to become 'Gallery Assistant: Operation'. In this context, by operating we mean: ¶ Building costs (rent, insurance, health and safety, maintenance) ¶ Organisational costs (board and director meetings, accountancy, equipment, administration materials and general expenses) ¶ Personnel (staff salaries, temporary assistants, travel and transport). ¶ Turn to STAFFING.[II]

FIG. 12 (see ESCAPING)

OVERPRINTING (see also UPCYCLING[II])

A series of announcements for the exhibition 'Narrative Show' (May to September 2011) were repeatedly overprinted. The exhibition was constructed around an evolving narrative 'scripted' by artists. 10,000 announcements were printed in May and have been regularly overprinted and distributed since, simultaneously announcing and documenting the changing conditions in the exhibition. ¶ Turn to PUBLICISING.

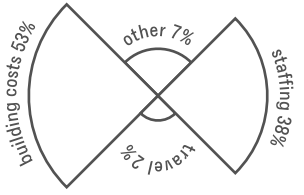

PARTNERING

We have partnered with the following organisations to present exhibitions: Book Works, London; Cornerhouse, Manchester; Grizedale Arts, Cumbria; Leeds Met Gallery, Leeds; mima, Middlesbrough; Museum de Paviljoens, Amsterdam; Wysing Arts Centre, Cambridge. ¶ Turn to BORROWING.

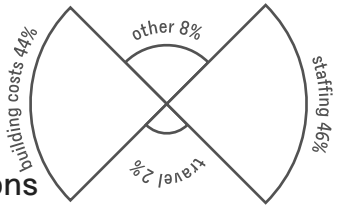

PLACEMAKING

In October 2010 Eastside Projects acquired an eighth column, a new freestanding pillar joining the row of seven supporting the roof of the building along its central axis. The existing columns are five-metre high cast concrete and steel supports —

POLICY-MAKING
We must look out for sites of policy void in order to fill them. ¶ Turn to INVESTING.

PRECEDING
Between the late 1990s and 2007 various artist-led projects and groups existed in Birmingham. Lack of access to affordable, secure, long term space was a consistent barrier to development. ¶ Key projects that helped produce the conditions which led to Eastside Projects were ¶ B16 ¶ The Bond ¶ City Space ¶ Colony ¶ Crowd 6 ¶ The Foundation ¶ [Insertspace] ¶ Periscope ¶ Self Service ¶ Space Banana ¶ Spectacle ¶ Springhill Institute. ¶ In 2012 access to affordable, secure long term space for artist-led and independent initiatives is no better. ¶ The artist-led space is not a stop gap. The artist-led space is a public elegant expressions of their functional simplicity. ¶ The new column is an artwork by Jennifer Tæ. 'Local Myths' is a three-metre high carved carrara marble totem with regular diagonal notches along its sides and a peaked apex — an elegant expression of the artist's quixotic practice.

FIG. 13 (see PLACEMAKING)
Jennifer Tæ, 'Local Myths' (2010). Carrara marble column.

¶ The new column supports no physical aspect of the gallery, but instead supports the notion of local myths: with the letters L-O-C-A-L-M-Y-T-H-S carved proud of the surface in vertical succession down the length of its cool veined surface. Tæ's totem is a long-term artwork in Eastside Projects, eventually to be located in a permanent site in the Eastside area. ¶ Turn to PLANTING.

PLANTING
In 2009 twenty Silver Birch trees from Simon and Tom Bloor's Eastside Projects exhibition 'As long as it lasts' were made available to be planted in the planned Birmingham City Park. Individuals and organisations are invited to sponsor a tree. A plaque with each individual or organisation's name will be placed in the civic area with the trees, promising a commitment of growth and regeneration towards the formation of a new public space. Each donor also receives an editioned screenprint by the artists. ¶ Turn to LOCALISING.

PRINTING
Our communications emphasise printed matter as a rich and vital expression of the sensibilities of the gallery. ¶ Turn to OVERPRINTING.

PROGRAMMING
Each year we programme four to five exhibitions in our main gallery and four to five exhibitions in our second gallery. ¶ We also present talks and events in various contexts on-site and off-site. ¶ See ENGAGING then turn to PUBLISHING.

PROVOKING
We do not make art for the public. We are the public that makes art. This is how we are of benefit to society. ¶ Turn to INTRODUCING.

good. Imagine a city with many different Eastside Projects.

PRIVATISING
We are compelled to find sources of private income. ¶ Turn to POLICY-MAKING.

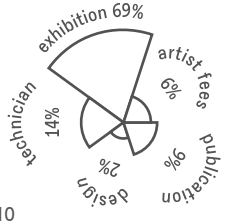

PRODUCING
See FIG. 27, p. 30. One of three broad terms used during 'Public Evaluation Event' to classify the labour and resources required to maintain Eastside Projects (See also OPERATING and DISTRIBUTING). ¶ A proposition: production is the actions that lead to making things, and what is made. Things might be art, objects, books, messages, exhibitions, the layers of making space and its narrative. ¶ Following 'Public Evaluation Event' we revised the job description for one of our staff members to become 'Gallery Assistant: Production'. In this context, by producing we mean: ¶ Exhibition conception ¶ Construction ¶ Installation ¶ Technical equipment ¶ Artists' fees and expenses. ¶ Turn to REPRESENTING.

PUBLICISING

The billboards on the exterior and interior of Eastside Projects are the only such display sites in the city operating outside the control of the major advertising corporations. ¶ Billboard hoardings proliferate in regeneration zones in city centre locations, as developers look to maximise their income by offering the use of their sites to communicate to those walking, driving and traveling by public transport. We declare our publicness through the use of this platform to commission and present artworks. ¶ Works have included Liam Gillick's 'The Doors Of The Administration Building Will Remain Open' (2008) and 'The Whatnots Of The Administration Building Will Remain Open' (2008), Mark Titchner's 'Cut Us Don't Kill Us' (2010), and Carey Young's 'Inventory' (2007) (remade for Eastside Projects, 2010). ¶ Turn to PLACEMAKING.

PUBLISHING

Publishing is an important aspect of Eastside Projects' activity — a mobile extension of the gallery space. We produce printed matter, books, comics and editioned artworks. ¶ We have represented ourselves at various independent publishing fairs, including Publish and be Damned (London, 2009), Spike Island Artists' Book Fair (Bristol, 2009), Pa/Per View (London, 2011) and

The New York Art Book Fair (New York, 2010). ¶ Turn to SELLING.

QUESTIONING

We intend Eastside Projects to be a questioning structure that in turn produces more questions and also, of course, possible answers. These typically take the form of exhibitions and curatorial enquiry, and are pointed towards a set of innate properties of exhibition making; but also beyond that to the shēr elation of organising and discovering objects and ideas in space and context, for redefining and transforming essential human tools. This is why we exist and why you may wish to use us. ¶ Turn to REFLECTING.

REFERRING

At least three exhibition precedents provide reference points and an underlying ethos for the continuing evolution of the gallery as an artwork. ¶ 1) El Lissitzky's 'Abstract Cabinet' (1926/1930), at the International Kunstausstellung Dresden and Hannover Museum represents a clear and radical emergence of the artist-curator generating a constructed environment for artworks by Piet Mondrian, Naum Gabo and Lissitzky himself. It functioned as an artwork in itself, intertwined with the selection and integration of other artists' works. ¶ The 'Abstract Cabinet' can be used as a

QUESTIONING II

In preparation for 'Public Evaluation Event' Eastside Projects invited questions from our audience for consideration during the event. The following is a selection of questions received. ¶ Do exhibitions stand up against Twitter as a contemporary form? ¶ What is the role of small visual arts organisations within the wider arts ecology? ¶ How can intangible assets be acknowledged as a resource? ¶ How does one measure cultural value? ¶ Should contemporary art be funded by the government? ¶ How collaborative are you? ¶ How do you justify your hierarchical structure? ¶ Is your budget completely transparent and public? ¶ How much time do you spend branding your organisation as opposed to challenging it? ¶ How much time do you spend thinking about the exhibitions and supporting artists within the total amount of time spent working? ¶ Why do you stick to the term 'gallery' knowing its elitist origin? Is the idea of a 'new gallery' not a contradiction in terms? ¶ Have you ever failed? ¶ Do you take the notion of 'art' for granted? ¶ How do we collectively make the case that artists contribute socially, culturally and economically? ¶ Do you think we know your answers? ¶ Are you Eastside till you die? ¶ Is your board permanent? Can it be changed and/or added to? ¶ What is your curatorial policy on Eastside Projects' gallery directors showing their own works? ¶ What is your position on unpaid labour? ¶ How do you choose the artists you exhibit? ¶ Do you feel the William Pope.L show is a success? ¶ Who is the audience? ¶ Given the elitist tendencies of the art world, how does Eastside Projects engage with the people of Birmingham and align with social struggles in these recessionary times? ¶ Is Eastside Projects aware of the critical literature that is developing around regeneration and what is its strategy in relation to the proposed 'Cultural Quarter'? ¶ Turn to COMPLAINING.

model for an art space, a display device designed specifically to support different directions in a programme. We might think not of El Lissitzky's aesthetics but of his approach to spatial design as a form of curating, the building and graphics supporting and producing the curatorial process.

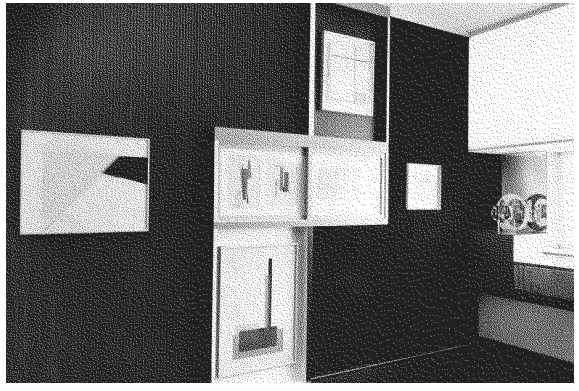

FIG. 15.1 (see REFERRING)
El Lissitzky, 'Abstract Cabinet' (1926/1930).

¶ 2) Peter Nadin Gallery (1978–1979), New York, by Peter Nadin, Christopher d'Arcangelo and Nick Lawson. A continuous exhibition titled 'The work shown in this space is a response to the existing conditions and/or work previously shown within the space'. Artists included Daniel Buren, Peter Fend, Dan Graham, Louise Lawler, Sean Scully and Lawrence Weiner. The artists directly responded to each others' work, developing a cumulative environment. Two of the artists (Fend and Weiner) contributed semi-permanent works to the first exhibition at Eastside Projects.

¶ Nadin et al's 1978 project began with this announcement: "We have joined together to execute functional constructions and to alter or refurbish existing structures as a means of surviving in a capitalist economy." This text forms the starting point for Eastside Projects' gallery policy and strategy. ¶ Just as Nadin et al's exhibition started with the 'empty' gallery space, 'This is the Gallery and the Gallery is Many Things' (September to November 2008) — the first exhibition at Eastside Projects — followed suit in an unravelling of function, design and execution by the gallery and the artists.

Luc Tuymans. The artists collectively planned the exhibition as a joint enterprise, defining relationships betwæn each other and redefining functions of the museum space. The title of the first Eastside Projects exhibition, 'This is the Gallery and the Gallery is Many Things', is adapted from this exhibition and also functions as a policy and slogan.

RESPONDING
In April 2011, the We Are Eastside consortium issued the following statement in response to the announcement of the restructuring of funding for the arts through Arts Council England's National Portfolio: ¶ "The cuts to the arts through Arts Council England and Birmingham City Council represent a shift in the arts ecology of the city. We Are Eastside has a strong position through a shared vision of Birmingham as an international exemplar of ambitious collaboration across art forms, combined expertise, resources and ideas, and sustainable independent arts activity. Together we can inspire the next generation of young people in our city." ¶ Turn to QUESTIONING.

REVERSE-ENGINEERING
In March 2012, the Mobile Wall System (see BORROWING) will be returned to Vienna Secession. A new long-term work for Eastside Projects by Gavin Wade, 'Mobile Wall System with 41 Permanent Pole Positions on a Square and Triangular Grid (After Adolf Krischanitz)' (2011) was conceived as a support system first used for 'Painting Show' (November 2011 to February 2012). This new system was reverse-engineered from Krischanitz's original by design and fabrication workshop Queen & Crawford. Eastside Projects' system now comprises ¶ 12 powder coated aluminium support poles, 281.5 x 5 x 5cm ¶ 10 powder coated aluminium support poles 393.5 x 5 x 5cm ¶ 10 hardwood, plywood and MDF panels, 281.5 x 197.5 x 5cm ¶ 10 hardwood, plywood and MDF panels, 113.5 x 197.5 x 5cm ¶ stainless steel bolts ¶ stainless steel and brass floor inserts.

SPECIFYING
Eastside Projects has a large main gallery space, 255 square metres; a second smaller gallery, 70 square metres, (equipped for video projection); and an office/studio. SUPPORTING (see also PARTNERING[II])
ESP members are offered a range of opportunities to develop their practice and career through critical group discussions, practical support and guidance, exhibition and residency opportunities, networking events and one-to-one support from established art professionals and ESP staff. ¶ Dialogue between members is generated and supported through a weekly programme of informal and formal events including seminars, talks, film screenings and visits to exhibitions, events and projects in other UK cities. ¶ Turn to CRITICISING.

These terms have proved to be a useful means of organising our work. ¶ Turn to PRIVATISING.

SUPPORTING[II]
Support is the tragic double of the prefix. Support can't spend time alone with itself, but is condemned to existence only in relation to something else. Prefix usually means an entity placed before something else in order to change its meaning — such as the 'in' which prefixes inedible — but in the case of support, a prefix is largely an entity placed before (beneath / behind / below) something to maintain it in the condition it is already in. ¶ For example: ¶ In support of structure ¶ In support of structural trauma ¶ In support of ideology ¶ In support of the band that everybody really came to see ¶ In support of language ¶ In support of someone else ¶ In support of, erm, bishops. ¶ — Beatrice Gibson, 'Definitions of Support', in 'Support Structures' (2009).

TRANSFORMING

A square plinth was constructed in MDF to support artworks by Athanasios Argianas, Michael Dean, Tatiana Echeverri Fernandez, Lothar Hempel, Marko Lulic and Franz West during 'Sculpture Show' (May to June 2009).

FIG. 17.1 (see TRANSFORMING) 'Sculpture Show' (2009).

¶ These materials were upcycled by artists Joanne Tatham and Tom O'Sullivan to construct an artwork in the form of a painted tunnel for the exhibition 'Does your contemplation of the situation fuck with the flow of circulation?' (July to September 2009).

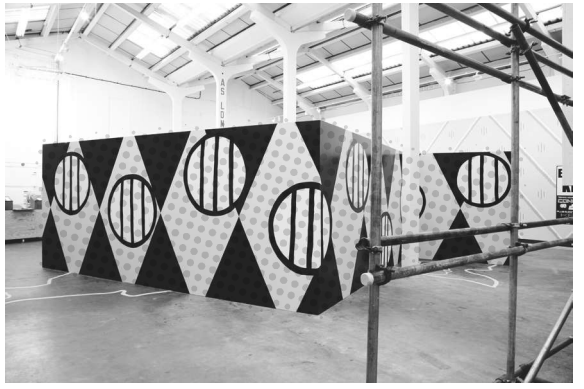

FIG. 17.2 Joanne Tatham and Tom O'Sullivan, 'Does your contemplation of the situation fuck with the flow of circulation?' (2009).

¶ 'Abstract Cabinet Show' (September to November 2009) upcycled the tunnel in the following ways. One side was re-covered with wallpaper by DJ Simpson; one wall was extended with a service point for a performance; the back was converted into a commercial gallery art fair stand; lighting was added to the inside of the tunnel for an exhibition of hanging instructions called 'This Way Up' curated by Magnus Quaife and David Osbaldeston; and finally Stan's Cafe undertook a five hour performance entitled 'The Commentators' on the roof of the tunnel during a busy launch night.

TWEETING II
Selected tweets from @eprjcts #PEE11: ¶ We are the production of the 'to be looked at' and the 'to be attended to'. ¶ We are enablers of display. ¶ We are the history of 'artist-run space'. ¶ We may not have a fundamental core principle. ¶ We are exhausting. ¶ We may advocate for a system of self regulation through a peer network. ¶ We engage in a system of reputation, profile and currency. ¶ We are not innocent. ¶ We might not comply with the existing conditions of public support. ¶ We are disclosers of problematics. ¶ We want and need advocates. ¶ We must be patient. ¶ We are loyal. ¶ We might not live forever. ¶ We must reproduce and become parents. ¶ We must keep a keen eye on what we are not looking for. ¶ We must learn from our experiences. ¶ Make sure we really do. ¶ We must swap positions with our guests. ¶ We must do long term cultural planning. ¶ We might be 'anti' and 'ante'. ¶ We must develop art that is unfathomable, unimaginable. ¶ We cannot deny that we are connected to the Birmingham of the 1970s. ¶ We might be a new knowledge micro-economy.

¶ For the following exhibition, 'Two Short Plays' by Liam Gillick (November 2009 to January 2010), the tunnel was dismantled and the painted and wallpapered panels were used to construct a new gallery wall as the backdrop for Gillick's plays.

T W E E T I N G
Selected twæts from @eprjcts: ¶ A book able to reverse time. ¶ A water damaged Bas Jan Ader book. ¶ We're cutting out pictures of Koi Carp and swimming men for Dan Graham! ¶ Narrative drives social cohesion. ¶ The hedgehog is a specialist, the fox a generalist. ¶ Eastside Projects is a multiplex! ¶ The withdrawal of support for public good leads to art's separation from society. Not the other way around. ¶ Scaffold training happening right now in the gallery. Some sound advice and sensible footwear on show. ¶ What is the opposite of painting? ¶ Art is the dismantling of reality. ¶ Capitalism is over. ¶ Memorials promote forgetting. ¶ "When I don't know what an artist is doing, that's when I'm having a good time. That's when I'm sæing art. — Christopher Williams."

¶ We must be a thinking space. ¶ We must never become a brand. ¶ We care about the area we are in and our city. ¶ We are compelled to find private revenue income. ¶ We must work hard to protect ourselves and our partner organisations for the futures that we are able to anticipate. ¶ We must punch above our weight. ¶ Develop provision for ultra extra special people. ¶ Our graphic design is not a reflection of the gallery. It is the gallery. ¶ We must get some leopard skin pattern into our design. ¶ We must be an important node in the cultural life of our city. ¶ We need to be 'just a really nice place to hang out'. ¶ Birmingham is a second city similar to New York. ¶ We are a structural mechanism of social order. ¶ We are here to change power relations. ¶ We must be multicultural. ¶ We must continue, and champion, the idea of thinking in public. ¶ We must be gardeners. ¶ We must know when to stop. ¶ We must tweet things that we believe in. ¶ We will go to Stockholm in three years time.

TYPE-DESIGNING

In 2010 Eastside Projects invited Radim Peško to develop a new typeface for the gallery. The result, Specta, is a typeface designed for adaptability and specificity. Its first version comprised an initial collection of letter forms that are being modified and added to in response to the changing conditions of the gallery and the nęeds of its vocabulary. Condensed, bold and monospaced versions are now also in use. The first Specta type specimen appears here and constitutes the entries DECODING and CONFOUNDING. ¶ Turn to PRINTING.

UPCYCLING

Upcycling means speaking in a polyphonous way ¶ Choose upcycling to survive ¶ Upcycling is an important form of protest ¶ Avoid being a human resource ¶ Upcycle now, pay never ¶ Take and copy and paste and change this manifesto ¶ Upcycle this text ¶ — RELAX (chiarenza & hauser & co.), What is Wealth? ¶ Turn to HAIRDRESSING.

VISITING

ESP organises regular visits to arts organisations in other UK cities, providing opportunities for members to broaden their UK networks and take part in exchange projects. Recent trips have visited Glasgow, Nottingham and Bristol.

WELCOMING

See FIG. 2, p. 1. ¶ The front door handle at Eastside Projects is an artwork by Matthew Harrison. Titled 'Willkommen. Bienvenue. Welcome. C'mon In.' (2008), it is constructed from the following timbers: ¶ African Ebony ¶ African Padauk ¶ American Black Walnut ¶ American Cherry ¶ Ash ¶ Bęech ¶ Brazilian Tulipwood ¶ Bubinga ¶ Cuban Mahogany ¶ East African Pau Rosa ¶ Lacewood ¶ London Plane ¶ Maple ¶ Mopane ¶ Pink Ivory ¶ Purpleheart ¶ Pau Amarelo ¶ Santiné Bloodwood ¶ Violet Rosewood ¶ Wenge ¶ Zebrano. ¶ Turn to OPENING.

UPCYCLING II

A question from the audience at 'Public Evaluation Event' enquired as to why Eastside Projects takes so little care over its choice of envelopes: routinely our printed matter is mailed in generic office envelopes. ¶ In response, at the suggestion of Fraser Muggeridge, the 1200 overprinted announcements for 'Narrative Show' (see OVERPRINTING) that remained at the end of the exhibition were transformed into bespoke envelopes. ¶ Announcements for the exhibitions 'Painting Show' and 'Corridor Plateau II' were subsequently mailed in these envelopes. The format for these two new announcements was determined by the dimensions of the envelopes that could economically be made from the 'Narrative Show' announcements.

USING

Following 'Public Evaluation Event' discussion took place between the six directors of Eastside Projects about the implications of the term 'user' in the title of this document. Concerns were raised that those using the space, in any capacity, should not be considered to be passive; and that Eastside Projects should not be considered to be a pre-programmed entity in the same sense as an appliance, or any other more typical subject of a user's manual. ¶ To clarify, we mean to cast the user in a self-determinate role.

WHISTLE-BLOWING

"Generating and maintaining a dissenting presence in the public sphere. Whistle-blowing is a calling to attention and a call to account for actions in the public sphere. Whistle-blowing contests public modes of address, complimenting other forms such as radical political slogans, disaffected billboard posters, protesting performances, revolutionary manifestos and rabble rousing videos. Artist collective Freee are devising new techniques of whistle-blowing, techniques that they say we can all use to halt the flow of ideology." ¶ Turn to PARTNERING.
